

UNDERSTANDING ULF

All e2o products utilize ULF

patented by Ecospec Philippines

Ultra Low Frequency noun

ˈʌl-trə lō frē-kwən(t)-sē

ULF, an acronym for Ultra Low Frequency, is a form of vibrational wave energy that can be utilized in water to effectively increase the internal energy of water molecules.

How does treating drinking water with ULF affect its properties?

Revitalizing water with ULF energy creates energized water that has an antioxidizing effect on the body, counteracting negative oxidation and promoting a healthier metabolism.

This unique treatment results in e2o – the ultimate solution for those looking to improve their health and wellbeing.

DID YOU KNOW?

e2o is helpful for preventing your 3 HIGHS:

- High sugar
- High blood level
- High cholesterol

Benefits of e2o

For most people, liquids make up a larger part of their daily diet than solid food. By consuming e2o water, you can help ensure that you're receiving enough antioxidants to keep you feeling youthful and healthy.

Food Containing Antioxidants

While fruits are known for being a rich source of antioxidants, they also contain fructose, which having too much of can contribute to the development of obesity, chronic inflammation, non-alcoholic fatty liver disease, and insulin resistance.

Supplements

If you're looking to get your fill of antioxidants, supplements are a go-to for many. But what if you could simplify this process? That's where e2o comes in - our water removes the need for multiple supplement doses throughout the day.
